said first well regions adjacently to said first well regions is equivalent to the forming said second well region adjacently to said first well regions.

36: The method of manufacturing a power semiconductor device according to claim 34, wherein the forming said field insulating film includes the removing said field insulating film in a place in which said second well contact hole is to be formed.

* * * * *